Village of Voorheesville Collection Guide

September 2015

Preface:

The Village Historian of the Village of Voorheesville, Dennis Sullivan, collected manuscripts, photographs, maps and printed material of the residents, businesses, churches and organizations for over 30 years. These historical archives were stored in the Village Hall and were used by the Village Historian and others as needed. Because of the importance of the archives and their usefulness to students, scholars and others interested in the local history of Voorheesville, a decision was made to move them to the Voorheesville Public Library to improve their preservation and access. The Mayor of the Village, Robert D. Conway, upon the request of the Village Historian, agreed to transfer the historical archives collected by the Village Historian to the Voorheesville Public Library on the basis of a temporary deposit with all property rights, including copyright, remaining with the Village of Voorheesville. The historical archives were transferred on August 22, 2014.

This finding aid could not have been done without the aid of Dennis Sullivan, Village Historian, who not only collected the records described here, but wrote a fine history of Voorheesville that was a vital source of information in describing these records. His encyclopedic knowledge of all things Voorheesville was a necessity throughout the project and I thank him for his patience and help. Mayor Robert D. Conway and Linda Pasquali, Village Clerk were instrumental in the transfer of the village historical records. Gail Sacco and the staff of the Voorheesville Public Library, especially Lynn Kohler, were helpful during the processing of these records. Thanks are also due to Lesa Clark for her artistic work on the cover of this guide.

The following is an inventory of the historical records. While the description of these records is detailed, this finding aid is not an index to every document, name or subject found in these records. Some files have printouts of genealogical data from Ancestry.com or other sources that provide clarifying information about particular records. Some photographs lack any identifying information and any information that will assist in identifying the individuals or scenes in photos will be appreciated.

Brief History of Village of Voorheesville:

Although there were farming and rural families for a century the population remained sparse in the area that became the village; about 300 people in 1893. In 1863, the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad (and later Delaware & Hudson Railway) began service to “New Scotland” as the railroad stop was known and a beginning was made in regular passenger and later commercial and industrial railroad traffic (coal, farm products, etc.) that would establish what would become the village. The Village of Voorheesville was incorporated in 1899 after a few years of discussion among the village residents. Alonzo Voorhees, an Albany lawyer who moved to the hamlet, applied for a post office for it and named it for himself, thus, Voorheesville. The post office changed the name from Voorheesville to Farlin in 1890 and kept it until 1892, when the name was changed again to Voorheesville. After previous attempts to incorporate failed, a successful vote was held in May 1899 and the village was incorporated.

The village had generally been based on a rural farming community. In 1863, the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad ran an excursion train from Albany to the rural hamlet, later the Delaware and Hudson Railway and Saratoga and Hudson River Railroad came to the hamlet, beginning what was to make Voorheesville a railroad town. The railroads brought not only tourists from Albany and elsewhere, it made the village more accessible as a suburban residence and created the opportunity for several industries to build factories in the village. The factories provided jobs for the local population and made the village attractive to other would-be workers. Industries included a barrel-making factory, foundries including the Phoenix and Albany Malleable Iron Works, a canning factory, grain and feed mills, and others; local orchards grew the apples needed for two cider and vinegar companies, a creamery and grist mill were available for local farmers, and local women sewed collars and shirts in their homes.

Other businesses and institutions of community life followed, including hotels, (Grove Hotel and Harris House), an Odd Fellows Lodge, churches (First Methodist, First Presbyterian and St. Matthew’s Catholic), a fire department established in 1902, a library opened in 1915, Voorheesville Grange, a women’s study group called the Bay View Club and many stores, including groceries, a hardware store, lumberyard, restaurants, and a public school that eventually became the core of the Voorheesville Central School System.

Men from the village served in all the wars of the 20th c., including over 100 during World War II, while the village’s women not only carried on with their home-making tasks, but worked in the local industries and a few served in the Armed Services.

The post-war years brought increased development and suburbanization to the village as roads were improved and more families could afford automobiles.

Most of the industries in the village disappeared during these years and while trains still pass through the village several times per day, there is no longer a railroad depot.

In May 1999, the village celebrated its centennial with a parade and many other events over an entire weekend.

Box 1: Family Records and Memoirs:

This is a group of items that are concerned with family history, genealogy, and memoirs in Voorheesville and the Town of New Scotland. The items are filed by family name and described individually. There are also a few short local history essays in this box.

Folder 1: Hendrick Family:

Newhart, Anna Hendrick, Relations, Recollections and Reflections of the Hendrick Family.

This is a typescript memoir and genealogy of the Hendrick and related families, ca. 70 pp., with 5 portrait photographs and newspaper clippings tipped in. The memoir includes brief genealogies of the Hendrick, Wands and Russell families. The portrait photos are of Anna Hendrick Newhart, Col. James Hendrick, Anna Wands Hendrick, James Burnside Wands, Nelly Russell Wands. The story includes the Hendrick family in Ireland, in Albany and at Font Grove in the Town of New Scotland. The Hendricks were a wealthy family and the memoir tells of visits to other wealthy friends and relations in New York and elsewhere, christening of a yacht in Philadelphia and the visits, dinners and other affairs where famous people often appear.

Col. James Hendrick, a lawyer, was involved with and president of number of Albany companies in 19th c. and later bought his wife's family home and farm which was eventually called Font Grove, named for a sulphur spring on the property. Font Grove farm was on the New Scotland-New Salem turnpike in the Town of New Scotland. The farm eventually grew to over 600 acres and had tenants who lived on the farm. The Colonel was a director of the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad and was involved in the fight for control of the railroad with Jim Fisk, (p.12-13). The Relations is generally chronological and includes many anecdotes about the family, childhood, education, and lives of the Hendricks. The Hendricks seemed to have been close to the family of Sarah Gould, the sister of Jay Gould and the families visited each other at their homes at Font Grove and the Gould home at Lyndhurst in Irvington, NY.

Folder 2: Diary of Derrick Van Schaick Raynsford

This is a diary by an unidentified person for the year 1871 found in the Village of Voorheesville Historical Records collection. The diarist is not noted, but is almost certainly Derrick Van Schaick Raynsford. He was a farmer, a member of the Presbyterian Church of New Scotland and lived in New Scotland. He appeared to have at least two farm laborers Albert (his son) and Fred Wilder and is involved with his neighbors and with the town affairs. He grew hay, potatoes, carrots, and had an apple and pear orchard. He sold his produce in Albany and also sold veal and pork from butchered animals as well as chickens and eggs from his farm. He owned oxen. He attended the New Scotland Presbyterian Church and also attended the Reformed Church in Guilderland Center (Samuel L. Gamble, minister). He mentions the names of the preachers at the churches he attended. William C. Handy was the Presbyterian minister from 1871-1874 and Samuel L. Gamble was minister from 1861-1867; Gamble was later minister of the Reformed Church of Guilderland from 1869-1883 and the diarist attended that church as well. He attended funerals and helped the families of the deceased by going to Albany for undertakers and coffins. He went to county and town fairs and voted on election day. It seems that holidays, such as Christmas were ignored; he and his men worked on Christmas Day. He may have been a neighbor or relation of the Benders as he seems to spend many nights at the Bender home. He mentions an Uncle George several times who appears to be George Bender, husband of Jane and father of Ephraim and Sarah Bender and other children; (Ephraim and Sarah are mentioned in the diary along with Uncle George). Some other names mentioned in the diary are Aunt Eve Ann, Uncle Haswell, Wille (Willard, his son, 14 years old in 1870), the Wayne family, Moak family and others. Lovina (Lavinia) is mentioned in the diary and DVS Raynsford had a sister named Lavinia. There are several "No entry" days, mainly Sundays, where the farmer did not write anything in his diary; (did he not work on Sundays or did he go to church and not mention it in his diary?) Almost the entire diary is taken up with work done daily on the farm or at sales of his products in Albany, though there are entries for funerals attended and mention of going to county fairs.

Folder 3: A complete transcript has been made of this diary and is available with the original as well as pages from various websites related to the people mentioned in the diary. The New York State Library has a three other volumes of the diary of D.V.S. Raynsford dated in the 1870s. Also: A photograph (reproduction) of four men, including D.V.S. Raynsford.

Folder 4: Genealogical Guide to Saratoga Co.

This is a printed pamphlet entitled, Genealogical Guide to Saratoga County, New York, compiled by Field Horne, 1980, with detailed information about a variety of resources for genealogists looking for ancestors in Saratoga County.

Folder 5: Memorial poem

This memorial poem, In Memory of Miss Carrie Van Auken, who died at Voorheesville, N.Y., September 14, 1881, by her teacher, B.S. Crosby, is a printed poem written in memory of a child by her teacher. Carrie Van Auken was the daughter of John and Elizabeth Van Auken of New Scotland, NY and had 5 siblings. She died in 1881 at the age of 16 years.

Folder 6: Memoranda Book

This is a printed and manuscript item entitled, Pierce's Memorandum and Account Book designed for Farmers, Mechanics and All People, 1887. The booklet is a "a present from the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, NY and London, Eng." and is filled with printed advertisements for a large variety of medicines. The book was used by an unknown person for a variety of entries, including hours worked in a foundry and pay received. The information about work appears to date from 1930-1931, although the booklet was printed in 1887 and the pay received was $3.00 per day.

Folder 7: Youmans Family

This is a memoir of Samuel A. Youmans of life on a farm on Youmans Road in the Town of New Scotland. The farm was located a ½ mile north of Rt. 85 in the hamlet of New Scotland. Youmans was born in 1921, the son of Lester H. and Ethel Cozine Youmans. The memoir tells the story of his life in school and life working on the farm, including crops grown, stories about trains and transients, old-time New Scotland, World War II, retail milk business from the farm and other anecdotes about his life in New Scotland. It is a photocopy of a typewritten account and illustrated with photos of the farm and with cartoons about farming, 20 pp.

Folder 8: Interview Transcripts

This is file of transcripts of 3 interviews done by Dennis Sullivan, Village Historian, in 1989. The interviews were done with:

Margaret Joslin talking about gypsies who visited Voorheesville and her family farm.

Harold Schultz talking about the Voorheesville Board of Trade, (transcript not complete).

Ken Weidman talking about "Remembrances of Voorheesville in Days gone by."

Folder 9: Weidman Family

This is a file of handwritten notes, anecdotes, family trees, and photographs about the Weidman and related families, including Beebe, Gregg, Crouse, Ostrander, Van Auken, Martin and other families. Most of the material is photocopied with some original photographs. Notes about Ken Weidman in unknown person's hand. This is a good source of information about several families in New Scotland and including anecdotes of town and family life.

Folder 10: Bloomingdale Family

This is small file about the Bloomingdale family, including a brief biography of Frank Bloomingdale, the first Mayor of Voorheesville and a genealogy of the Bloomingdale and related families compiled by Thomas Bloomingdale in 1981. Frank Bloomingdale was the postmaster and Mayor of Voorheesville and an Assemblyman from Albany County in the New York State Legislature. He owned a hay, grain, feed and farm machinery business in Voorheesville for 40 years. There are several copies of the brief biography in this file.

Folder 11: Tymchyn family: Miscellaneous documents re: Victor Tymchyn including: Diphtheria Toxin-Antitoxin Certificate, age 11, Dec. 22, 1927; report cards for 8th, 9th and 10th grades at Voorheesville School, 1929-1931.

Additional Tymchyn items, as follows, are found in the Oversize Box:

Eighth grade diploma of Victor John Tymchyshyn, Voorheesville Grammar School, June 24, 1930, signed by Clayton A. Bouton, Principal and E.K. Hallenbeck, President of Board of Trustees.

Testimonial Award for Victor Tymchyshyn, 6th grade, Voorheesville Public School for punctuality, June 22, 1928; also awards for 8th grade, 1930 and 9th grade, 1931.

Diploma for Victor John Tymchyshyn, for completion of 2 year course of study at Voorheesville Union School, June 27, 1932, signed by Clayton A. Bouton and others.

Folder 12: Local history essays, incl.: essay about Albany & Susquehanna RR Co., 2 pp.; short history essays by students about Voorheesville, New Salem and other topics, 6 pp.; short history essays by students about “early history of area,” fire dept., village government, railroad history.

Box 2: Harris House

The Harris House was a hotel in Voorheesville owned and operated by Morris Harris, originally from Albany, but who settled in Voorheesville during the time he owned the hotel, 1889-1904. The hotel not only had boarding guests, but also served as place for jurors to stay when the hotel was being used as a courtroom. Railroad workers also stayed at the hotel and there was entertainment, including wrestling matches, lectures, and magic shows. Morris Harris sold the hotel to Pelligrino Michele in 1922 and he ran it until 1953 when his son Michael Michele became the proprietor until 1975. Harris House eventually became a multi-family residence at 1 South Main St., Voorheesville, NY.

Folder 1-6: Land records of Harris House

This is a group of title searches, deeds and mortgages related to the property of the Harris House hotel, located at 1 Main St., in the Village of Voorheesville, NY. The property passed through several owners from the late 19th century into the 20th C. Harris bought the building in 1889 from William Mathias, who lived in and had a grocery store in the building. The Harris House continued as a hotel until 1975 when it became the Railroad Junction Ice Cream Parlor. There are also drawings for proposed alterations and an addition to the Harris House building, n.d., for the owner, Pellegrino Michele.

F. 1: Warranty Deeds:

Warranty Deed, Julia A. Chesebro to Frederick B. La Grange, April 1, 1868
Warranty Deed, William S. Swift and wife to Conrad Mathias, July 24, 1886

5 plans/drawings. This appears to be when the hotel was remodeled into a residential building.

F. 7-8: Photographs of Harris House

F. 7: There are three exterior photographic views of the hotel, all taken from across the road from the hotel, probably near the railroad depot; all three are reproduction photos.

There are three postcard photos of the hotel, including one that is a reproduction of one of the above photos; two of the postcards were published by Ess and Ess Photo Co., New York, NY and one by the Albany News Co.

F. 8: There is one interior photograph of the Harris House bar, n.d., ca. 1900. This photo is faded and is mounted on cardboard that is brittle. The cardboard backing is broken in several places, and the photograph is missing one corner due to the breakage; also a repro. photo.

See also: Tee shirt, green, from the Michele Family's Railroad Junction Old Fashioned Ice Cream Parlor, 1 South Main St., Voorheesville (formerly Harris House) found in Artifacts, Box 1.

Church Records

There are records of three churches, the First Methodist and First Presbyterian churches of Voorheesville and St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church. The records are as follows:

Box 3: First Presbyterian Church of Voorheesville, NY:

The Presbyterian Church was first organized in the Town of New Scotland in 1787 and anyone living in Voorheesville attending that church had to travel about 3 miles over unpaved roads, not an easy journey, especially in the winter and “mud” months. Therefore, Presbyterians in the village and nearby petitioned the Albany Presbytery to form a new congregation in June 1885. Soon thereafter, the First Presbyterian Church of Voorheesville was organized and was incorporated on August 8, 1885. The church met in a wagon house in Voorheesville, known as the Chapel, while the church building was constructed and dedicated October 13, 1887. A manse for the pastor was completed in 1894. There was a church school with sections for all ages from children to adults and interestingly pre-dated the church itself, having been formed in May 1885. The choir and church organ played an integral part in the church services; the organ was bought from a Reformed Church in Coxsackie, NY in 1907 and the church bell cast by the Jones Bell Foundry in Troy, NY in 1859 was acquired from a church in Nassau, NY sometime before the church was built. There was a Women’s Guild that assisted the church by helping to care for the church furnishings and by raising funds for the church. In 1896, a Women’s Missionary Society was formed and in 1933 a Men’s Club was organized. Other church groups included the Young People’s Society of Christian Endeavor, 1896 and a D.Y.B. Class (Do Your Best Class) which was another women’s group. By 1936, there were 136 members, but by 1949 the church membership had dwindled and financial problems of the church, as well as the difficulty in finding a permanent minister caused its disbandment. About half of the church members joined the New Scotland Presbyterian Church and the remainder joined the First Methodist Church of Voorheesville. The church building was acquired by the Voorheesville Public Library in 1950, which remained there until the new library building was constructed in 1989. The church building is now the home of Old Songs, Inc., a folk music organization. The original record book of the Treasurer of the New Scotland Presbyterian Church is in the collections of the New Scotland Historical Association in New Salem, NY.

Presbyterian Church Records:

Pkg. 1: Trustee minutes of meetings, Aug. 6, 1891-Sept. 22, 1948. Trustees were responsible for managing the properties of the church and for conducting the business of the church. The Session of the church was its governing body and oversaw the everyday work of the church, supervised the Deacons of the church and the Trustees who handled the financial, legal and property affairs of the church. There appears to be some overlap of functions as found in the records of the two main church offices in these records. The meetings were held in Farlin in 1891-1892 and later the meetings were held using the new village name, Voorheesville. Minutes include results of elections of trustees, calls (hiring) of ministers, treasurer reports, maintenance of church building, discussion of financial problems of the church, presentation of bills and orders to pay, distribution of charitable funds, payment of insurance and other matters, mainly financial. The book also contains the minutes of annual congregational meetings interspersed with trustee minutes. This book is a folio with a broken binding and must be used with care.

F. 1: The First Fifty Years, 1885-1936, Golden Jubilee, First Presbyterian Church, Voorheesville, New York. This is a pamphlet history of the church written for the Golden Jubilee held June 9-10, 13-14, 1936, 38 pp. The booklet includes a church directory of officers, program of the celebration, historical sketches of church's organization, buildings, furnishings, manse, pastors, church school, women's organizations, choir, Young People's Society and others, a list of church members, and several pages of advertisements by local businesses.

Our Heritage: The Presbyterian Church in New Scotland, New York, 200th Anniversary, 1787-1987: This is an 84 pp. history of the church written by several authors.

F. 2: Records of Session, Presbyterian Church, Voorheesville, N.Y., includes minutes of the session meetings, Jan. 23, 1920-April 26, 1937. The minutes include elections of Elders and Trustees at annual church meetings, examination of candidates for admission to church membership, annual statistical reports to be presented to the Albany Presbytery, receiving reports from Trustees, elections to Albany Presbytery from the church, resolutions of memorials for deceased members, minutes of annual congregational meetings with reports from various groups of the church, choir issues and concerns, Sunday School issues and reports and other concerns of the Session. A printed item issued by the Session, April 1922, gives the rules for the keeping of Session records and is pasted in the front cover of the book.

F. 3: Record book of various meeting minutes of the church, including:

Annual Congregation Meeting, Jan. 28, 1944

Special Meeting, May 28, 1944

Application to Board of Missions for aid

Annual Congregation Meeting, April 1945

Same, April 10, 1946

Special Meeting, Nov. 26, 1946

Annual Meetings, April 2, 1947, Jan. 15, 1948

The minutes of these meetings include annual reports of the minister (Rev. Elmer T. Schick, Stated Supply from the Albany Presbytery), Treasurer's reports, budgets and other items. The meeting on Nov. 12, 1944 was to carry a motion to apply to the National Board of Missions for $300 in aid for the church. There is a list of Elders and Trustees for the years 1944-1948.

F.4: Minute book of the Women's Guild of the Voorheesville Presbyterian Church, Feb. 6, 1931-May 2, 1940, including minutes of monthly meetings with reports from Treasurer and Secretary, payments for maintenance of church and manse from Guild treasury, fund-raising for the work of the Guild, planning for church events, appointments of committee members, and other topics.

F. 5: Minute book of the Women's Guild of the Voorheesville Presbyterian Church, June 12, 1940-December 3, 1942, including minutes of monthly meetings with reports from Treasurer and Secretary, payments for maintenance of church and manse from Guild treasury, fund-raising for the work of the Guild, planning for church suppers, parties, etc., appointments of committee members, and other topics.

F. 6: Photograph of Jubilee Pageant performed at the church, June 9, 1936; everyone in photo is identified on verso.

See also: Metal stamp for First Presbyterian Church, Voorheesville, NY, Incorporated Aug. 11, 1835, found in Artifact Box. (Careful: Very heavy object)

Box 4: First Methodist Church of Voorheesville:

The Methodist Church began first as a Methodist Society in 1815 after having been served by itinerant ministers for several years. It was known as the Black Creek Methodist Society and later was called the North Methodist Society of Bethlehem. The first church building was constructed in 1826 and after the formation of the Troy Conference of the Methodist Church in 1832, the church became part of the Watervliet Circuit. In 1870, a pastor was charged with both the New Scotland and New Salem churches and in 1887 a parsonage was built for the pastor. In 1890, the church building was taken down and rebuilt on a lot in Voorheesville. The church became known as the First Methodist Church of Voorheesville and the New Salem church closed and became part of this Voorheesville church. The church grew in the early 20th c. and in the Twenties the Sanctuary was remodeled with a new pulpit and new stained glass windows, a pipe organ was installed and Sunday School rooms and church kitchen were built. In the Fifties more expansion and remodeling was completed on the church and the adjoining lot was acquired by the church. In 1950 when the Presbyterian Church closed, several members of that church joined the Methodist Church. The church's large social hall has been used for programs of entertainment and conventions over the years; farmers' institutes, the Albany County Teachers Insitute in 1897 and other social and religious events and programs. This group of records does not contain any original records; only printed items are found here. The original records of the church are located at the church.

F. 1: Short History of the Voorheesville Methodist Church, by Frank Van Auken, 1939, 2 pp.

F. 2: Looking Back a Hundred Years—and More: Historical Statement concerning the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Voorheesville, N.Y., 1815-1920, 8 pp., (title page, and small part of text missing); a photo of the church in 1920 is pasted on page following Foreword, no author given; includes a list of pastors, 1815-1919.

F. 3: 1815-1965, 150th Anniversary, First Methodist Church, Voorheesville, New York, June 4th-6th, 1965, Walter E. Taylor, minister. This is a church photograph directory of the membership and church staff and includes a 3 pp. history of the church, 2 copies.

F. 4: First Methodist Church, 1984 Directory, Richard H. Hibbert, Pastor. This is a photographic directory of the church staff and membership. Also, a directory of the church for 1990 with a chronology of the church's history and a short history (1933) of the church inserted in directory.

F. 5: The Methodist Hymnal, 1905. The name John Cummings, Voorheesville, NY, March 20, 1908 is inscribed inside the front cover.

F. 6: New Testament, Psalms, Proverbs, Gideons Bible, no owner's name is noted; may have been part of the First Methodist Church records and is filed with those records.

F.6a: First Methodist Church of Voorheesville, script for pageant, "The Past is Prologue," for 150th anniversary, June 4, 1965; 4 pp.

F. 7: Photographs of the church building, including:

Box 4, Continued: St. Matthew's Roman Catholic Church:

Voorheesville, a small rural town in the early 20th c., had only a few Catholics, mainly Italian, Polish and Irish families and there was no church for them. In 1916 at the request of these families a mission church from St. Lucy's Church in Altamont began to have Sunday services in the village. In September 1916, these families began to raise money to build a Catholic Church sanctuary in the village and it was completed in June 1917. Though it had its own church building, St. Matthew's parish remained a mission of St. Lucy's Church for nearly 50 years. The priests of St. Lucy's offered Mass each Sunday at the original church building on Pleasant St. until 1962 when Bishop Scully created St. Matthew's as a parish and the current church and rectory were built. From 1916 until 1974, there appear to have been only four priests who served the church: James A. McManus, John R. Sise, Harold A. Sartoris and John A. Keefe.

Box 4: Folder 7: St. Matthew's Church, Mountain View Avenue, Voorheesville, New York, 1974. This is a photographic church directory of church staff and membership. There is a single paragraph history of the church as well as photos of the old and current church buildings and rectory.

Box 5: Railroads:

Railroads were the economic-industrial force that created the Village of Voorheesville. There were a few families (about 25 families in 1865), mostly farmers, on the land that would become Voorheesville, but there was little incentive to grow larger because of the travel distance for moving agricultural commodities to Albany and elsewhere. The Albany and Susquehanna Railroad beginning in 1863 changed the economic lives of these rural families by providing a quicker and cheaper means of getting their crops to market. The A&S Railroad also made the village that became Voorheesville into a coal center where locals could purchase coal coming on the railroad from the Pennsylvania coal fields. Later railroads, the Saratoga & Hudson River RR and West Shore RR (later part of the New York Central RR) and finally the Delaware & Hudson Railroad provided the impetus for the establishment of industries that needed the railroad system, including cider mills, a canning factory, cigar making and the Malleable Iron Works. The completion of the junction of the above railroads in Voorheesville made these industries even more viable and thereby created many new jobs for the local residents and immigrants just coming to America, including several Italian families. The building of the railroad system coming through Voorheesville and the construction of the passenger depot in 1889 made Voorheesville a destination for tourists visiting the Helderbergs and presented an opportunity for the building of two hotels in the village as well as the opening of grocery stores and taverns. Freight transport was helped along by the building of a freight depot in the village in 1900 and still is a daily occurrence on the D&H tracks through the village, particularly for the shipment of oil. By the mid-20th century, passenger railroad service was declining as the automobile and improved highways became the main means of local transportation of people and goods.

Grade crossings were a regular issue as the village grew and more local streets became populated with cars, bicycles, and pedestrians, all of whom needed to be protected from moving trains by becoming more aware of trains crossing at highway and road intersections. The use of flagmen was an early solution to the problem, but became inadequate and inefficient as the number of intersections and railroad traffic increased. Electric and automatic signals were needed and several types were invented in the late 19th and early 20th c. Many of the records in this collection deal with the issue of protecting grade crossings along the D&H Railroad route through Voorheesville.

The material here representing the history of railroads in Voorheesville includes photographs as well as documents and maps of grade crossings, railroad easements and other railroad issues.

F.1-8: Grade Crossings files.

Box 6: International Order of Odd Fellows, Voorheesville Lodge #668

The I.O.O.F. has a long history beginning in England, probably in late 17th or early 18th c., although there were fraternal organizations with the same purposes and functions in the Middle Ages (trade guilds). The I.O.O.F. is an organization whose purpose is to promote personal development, to assist the poor and needy and to promote a wholesome fraternal experience for its members. The first official lodge in the United States was in Baltimore in 1819, although there were unofficial lodges in New York City a few years earlier. In 1851, the I.O.O.F. became the first national fraternity to admit women when it formed the Daughters of Rebekah. As was the case of the trade guilds in the Middle Ages, the I.O.O.F. played a similar role as the nation industrialized. Before the creation of trade unions, the I.O.O.F. provided a variety of social services, including hospitals, nursing homes, insurance and other benefits to members and others. The I.O.O.F. has always been a democratic fraternal organization.

The Voorheesville Lodge of the I.O.O.F. was formed in April 1893 and opened its new lodge hall in 1909. Morris Harris, the owner of the Harris Hotel held a Valentine's Day fundraiser and raised enough money to form the lodge and to rent space in Leroy Schell's store. The lodge's building constructed in 1909 and was used for many years as a community center. Political gatherings, Saturday night movies, concerts, fundraisers for village groups and even the fire department for a period of time used the hall. The lodge building could seat 350 on its main floor and 100 in its balcony. The weekly movie nights were particularly popular for decades. In 1951, the local post of the American Legion bought the building from the I.O.O.F. The building is now the home of the American Legion, Post 1493.

The I.O.O.F. records in this collection include mortgages, dues records, copies of by-laws, Rebekah Lodge #551 records, a treasurer's account book, bills, an application to the village for a water supply for the lodge and other items. The following is an inventory of the I.O.O.F. items here.

F. 1: Certificate of Incorporation of the Voorheesville Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, No. 668, March 14, 1894. This is the founding document of the local lodge no. 668. A meeting was held December 25, 1893 where Morris Harris, Abram Relyea and Frank Bloomingdale were elected trustees of the lodge, which was chartered by the Grand Lodge of the I.O.O.F. of New York State. The document was signed by Frank Bloomingdale, James Fowler, and W.H. Ferguson (Secretary) of the lodge.

F. 2: Constitution, By-Laws and Rules of Order of Voorheesville Lodge, No. 668: printers' proof copy (Slingerland Printing Co.) annotated with many handwritten amendments and revisions, 1922.

F. 3: Grand Lodge, I.O.O.F., 1941 Fraternal Year Book, Constitution, By-Laws, Forms; also Constitution of Subordinate and Junior Lodges, 1941; also same title, 1947.

F. 4: Ritual of a Subordinate Lodge...of the I.O.O.F., 1928.

F. 5: Reinstate...Rededicate: Objectives and Recommendations of the Grand Master, 1938-1940, a report issued in 1940.

F.6: Funeral Ceremony ...Burial of Members of the I.O.O.F., September 1912, 2 cop.; also same title, as adopted in September 1912 and September 1923, printed 1924.

F. 7: Constitution, By-Laws and Rules of Order of Voorheesville Rebekah Lodge, No. 551, instituted April 26, 1923, Voorheesville, NY, 4 copies.

F. 8: Rebekah Funeral Ceremony, adopted by Sovereign Grand Lodge, September 1912. 1913.

F. 9: I.O.O.F. Lodge 668, Treasurer's Account Book, Nov. 1903-1909, 1921-1923, including date, name of person receiving or giving funds and amount received or spent. Many of the amounts are likely dues payments made to the Treasurer; therefore this book may serve as a resource for finding the names of the members of the I.O.O.F. during these years. An alphabetical list of dues-paying members to 1921 has been compiled from this book and is filed with it. The book also lists payments made for various services, including in March 1909, $87 for moving pictures (and various amounts during other months), for coal for heating the lodge building, insurance, electric light for lodge, War Relief Funds (in 1921), mortgage payments, painting, tuning piano, lawn mower, payments to I.O.O.F. Home Association, Altamont Enterprise, janitor services, printing and other expenses.

F. 10: Bill for 300 lbs. of carbide paid by Lodge No. 668 to Morris Harris, Oct. 30, 1911 ($3.65 per 100 lbs. for 300 lbs., $10.95). (This solid calcium carbide was possibly used in carbide lamps in the I.O.O.F. Hall)

F.11: Certificates of I.O.O.F., various lodges as follows:

Withdrawal certificates for members in good standing from other lodges recommending the member to the I.O.O.F. lodge #668, 1876-1907. (5 certificates)

Transfer certificates for members who have moved from another I.O.O.F. jurisdiction to the Voorheesville jurisdiction and therefore sever their membership in the previous lodge, 1911, 1914. (2 certificates)

Dismissal certificate of Wm. Brooks from Middle Grove Lodge #476, Dec. 1912, dismissed for non-payment of dues.

F. 12: Memorial of Lodge #668 on the death of member, James Keenholts, July 4, 1912, passed at I.O.O.F. Hall, July 29, 1912, 2 pp. typed.

F. 13: Mortgages and bonds of the I.O.O.F. Lodge #668 (Robert T. Coughtry, George A. Hallenbeck and Robert T. Coughtry, Trustees and R.T. Coughtry, Elsebee Jones and William H. Youngs, Trustees) with the Home Savings Bank and Frank Van Auken (who acquired the mortgage from Home Savings Bank), 1909-1951, for the land and lodge (Hall) building on Voorheesville Avenue, with lists of payment of principal and interest.

Also, resolution of the Lodge to borrow $900, June 1935 and certified resolution to borrow $900 from Daniel Wormer and bonds, 1936 and 1937

Also, surety bond for Treasurer of I.O.O.F., Jan. 1918.

F. 14: Punch card for I.O.O.F., Odd Fellows Home Fund "for the benefit of the aged, their wives, widows and orphans," n.d.

F. 15: Group of miscellaneous I.O.O.F. blank forms, as follows:

Receipt for dues and other charges of the I.O.O.F., 4 receipts

Tickets (2) for a Card Party of the Lodge #668

Notification to person that they have been elected a member of the Lodge #668 (ca.19 notifications)

Pad of blank Delinquent Notice No. 2 requesting payment of dues in order to remain a member.

F. 16: In Memoriam Badge of Lodge #668 and Voorheesville Lodge #668 badge on verso.

F. 17: Group photograph of the Voorheesville Lodge,#668, 1908, the year when Stephen Daring, a member of the Lodge, was elected GrandMaster of the New York State I.O.O.F.. The photograph shows over 80 members of the lodge seated outside underneath a tree with the Daring banner above them and the front row of members holding their white umbrellas. Daring was prominent in civic life of Voorheesville and was the first president of the Board of Directors of the Voorheesville Public Library in 1915. Daring was an attorney with a practice in Albany, NY and lived in Voorheesville on Maple Avenue. He was born Sept. 15, 1862 in Schoharie County and died August 15, 1932 and is buried in the Old Stone Fort Cemetery, Schoharie, NY. He was married to Margaret May Daring and had a son, Gilbert H. Daring. Also, a small b&w reproduction of the photo.

F. 18: Bill from Phoenix Foundry Company to I.O.O.F., 1/19/1912, for repair of grates.

F. 19: Photographs of I.O.O.F. building in Voorheesville, including:

3 different photos of the first lodge on the upper floor of the Leroy Schell feed and grain store (later W. Gilbert's store); one of the photos also shows the façade of T. Bewsher's Grocery. 5 photos.

1 photo showing construction of the I.O.O.F. Hall, n.d. (1908)

1 photo, b&w, showing the façade of the Hall, (when it was the American Legion Post hall) March 1977

1 photo, col., of façade of Hall, (when it was the American Legion Post hall) n.d., ca. 1970?

(Fragile).(Files in Box 19, Artifact Box)

Box 7: Maps:

This is a small group of miscellaneous maps of places in the Town of New Scotland or Voorheesville that are not directly related to any of the textual records in the Village Records.

F. 1: Rural Guide and Compass System Map, Albany County, New York, Ithaca, NY, Rural Surveys, Inc., 1939. This is a booklet with an index of names of people living in the rural areas of Albany County (cities, villages and non rural areas are not included in the index). Each name has an alpha-numeric code that is found on the map indicating the person's home. The Guide includes, besides the names and codes, brief articles about agricultural topics, advertisements of local businesses, and lists of Albany County officials and officers of farm organizations. Town of New Scotland businesses with ads in the Guide include: W.W. Crannell Lumber & Coal Co., Voorheesville; Hannay & Holmes Funeral Directors, Clarksville. Rural Surveys of Ithaca, NY produced compass system maps and guides for about a dozen counties in New York State in the Thirties.

F. 2: Blueprint map showing the lands of the Heldervale Corporation in the Town of New Scotland...to be conveyed to the Town of New Scotland for streets, by Wm. W. Baird, Jan. 19, 1938. The Heldervale homes appear to have been a development of colonial style homes built on land "just beyond Slingerlands." (See: photocopy of article from Knick News, Feb. 26, 1938)

F. 3: Map of Albany County, 1949, J.A. Kaestner, Jr., Superintendent of Highways. This map shows roads and highways, town lines, railroad lines, forest preserve lands and bridges; there are no surnames on this map.

F. 4: Booklet: Official Maps of New York, Chester, VT, National Survey Co., Lawton V. Crocker, Topographer, ca. 1928. Also has a few maps of the Eastern United States, inset maps of New York State cities and maps of Quebec; also has index of New York State communities. Albany County is shown on pp. 44-45. This map was owned by Marjorie Dyckes from Medford Sta., L.I., New York.

F. 6: Binder of maps: Village of Voorheesville, Classification Code, % of Assessed Valuation, Streets A B, Maps I II, by Board of Trustees, 1965, ca. 125 pp. This is a file of hand-drawn maps of village streets with names of residents/property owners noted on the maps. Maps have been removed from binder, which was in poor condition. A good source of information about the location of families in the village in 1965.

F. 7: Negative photograph of the D. H. Burr, Map of the Counties of Albany and Schenectady, 1829 with a paper print.

Box 7, continued: Voorheesville Public Library

There are three items that are directly concerned with the Voorheesville Public Library. Two items are significant for the history of the earliest development of the library. The Voorheesville Free Library was established in January 1915 when a group met and elected 10 trustees of the library. The chief early benefactor of the library was Frederick V. Griesman, the owner of the Albany Malleable Iron Works in the village. The library has had a few homes since its founding, including for several years the former First Presbyterian Church of Voorheesville and is now located on School Road in Voorheesville in a building completed in 1989. The library has several boxes of records, including many modern photographs (1980-present) in its archival collections.

F. 1: Letter from Voorheesville Free Library to C. H. Swift of Voorheesville, NY, Jan. 20, 1915 informing him of the formation of the library and asking him to consider becoming a member of the library for $1 per year ($25 for a life membership) so that the library could match an annual grant of $100 made by the New York State Board of Regents. They also mention that the library would be happy to accept any books he would consider donating. The library was open on Saturday for the first time on Jan. 23, 1915 from 2 to 6 p.m. and those were to be the hours thereafter. This was a form letter sent to residents of the village. C.H. Swift was Charles H. Swift, who in 1920 lived on Swift Road, was married to Louise Swift, 60 years old and a farmer.

F. 2: Broadside, Home Talent Show to be held at the Odd Fellows Hall, Dec. 4, 1916 for the benefit of the Voorheesville Free Library. The show consisted of three presentations: Marriage of Tom Thumb, Dance of the Giddy Girls and 1916 Old Maid Convention. The casts of the three productions were all residents of the village and, possibly, members of the library. There was dancing after the show with "Good Music." Tickets for the show were available at Pitcher & Wayne's.

F. 3: Photograph of Jane (Phillips) Salvatore (light coat) and Betty Shufelt (dark coat) in front of the Voorheesville Central School District Public Library, 32 Main St., Voorheesville, n.d., probably about 1948-49. Jane Salvatore became Librarian in 1948 and library moved to former First Presbyterian Church in 1950 and she remained the librarian until 1988. She was also the librarian at C.A. Bouton High School in Voorheesville.

Box 7, continued: Drawings by Constance Burns

Constance Burns, a free-lance artist, worked as an illustrator for the Syracuse Post Standard and the Albany Times-Union and drew the map of the Village of Voorheesville for the book, Voorheesville, New York, by Dennis Sullivan. These are photocopies of drawings (with multiple copies) by Burns in the collection. The following is a list of the drawings.

Box 8: Fires and Fire Department:

The Voorheesville Fire Department, a volunteer department, was organized as the Voorheesville Hose Company No. 1 on April 1, 1902. The department was formed as the result of two propositions on the ballot in March 1902, which permitted the village to create a board of fire commissioners and to spend village funds for fire equipment. Volunteers applied to join the department and if accepted, they paid an annual membership fee. The department acquired parade/drill uniforms in 1905 and the members marched in various village parades and did regular drills. In 1904 after the department had been raising funds and membership for two years, a purchase of a hose cart was made. The hose cart was pulled by firemen running to the fire. In 1929, after the department acquired sufficient money, a Childs pumper was acquired that was in service for many years. Confusion of the fire bell and church bells, motivated the department to purchase an electric alarm system in 1906 and in 1911 the department had built its first firehouse, on Voorheesville Avenue. (The building is now the Voorheesville Village Hall). A new pumper was purchased in 1951, another in 1966 and a new fire truck in 1987. In 1967, a new firehouse, designed by Hartheimer Associates, was built on Altamont Road and is still in use. The Women's Auxilliary was formed in 1951 to support the work of the firemen. Some of the major fires the department handled over the years included fires at hay barn of Frank Bloomingdale, fires at the Vunck Feed Mill and Coal Yards in 1934, 1954 and 1957 and the Duffy-Mott Cider Mill fire in 1951. The Voorheesville Area Ambulance Service, another volunteer group, became part of the department in 1952 after a joint meeting of the Fire Department and Women's Auxilliary. The ambulance was originally responsive to calls within the Voorheesville School District, but now responds to calls in Voorheesville and the New Salem Fire District.

Box 9: Schools

The Village of Voorheesville was not incorporated until 1899; however, education like businesses and farming had begun many years before. The first school building in the village was constructed in 1827 on land purchased in 1826 from Simon Terwilliger for $10. This one-room school house remained the only school in the village until 1866. In that year, a brick building was constructed for the school. This was also one-room school, but by 1911 two more classrooms were added; there were now three teachers in the school. In 1921, Clayton A. Bouton became the Principal of the school beginning a career that would last four decades devoted to education in Voorheesville. In 1929, a modern school was built at a cost $125,000 and the old brick 3-room school was demolished. The school was considered among the most modern school buildings in the state and included an innovative combination gymnasium/auditorium. The school had grades 1-10 and students wanting to finish high school had to travel to Albany, Bethlehem or one of the other local high schools. There had been boys' sports for years and in 1931, girls' sports were added to the curriculum and during the Thirties several school clubs were formed.

The need for a broad and more diversified education and population increases in nearby suburbs created a need for centralization of the schools. In 1941, the Voorheesville Central School District was created from nine area schools and had a program for grades 1-12. The district had three schools: Voorheesville, New Salem and New Scotland and in 1943 the district received its state charter. Clayton A. Bouton was named Supervising Principal of the district in 1946. The school building became inadequate as the population of the district grew and additions were erected in 1948 and 1963. A new junior-senior high school was built and dedicated in 1958. Some other developments had occurred as well: the first school bus was run beginning in 1939; the first senior class was 1940-1941; the first football game was played and first Torch yearbook was printed in 1942; in 1943, the public library became a school district library; 1944, the first issue of the Helderbarker was printed; 1946 class colors became purple and gold.

Post-war baby boomers moving to the district created an over-crowded situation in the school. Plans and budgets were drawn up for a new school and by 1958 a new junior-senior high school was open and named for Clayton A. Bouton. There was an addition to the elementary school in 1963 and to the high school in 1966. By 1972, the school enrollment was 1940 students. The elementary school issues its newsletter, Black Bugler and the high school, Helderbarker on regular schedules.

Box 10: Businesses in Voorheesville:

Businesses in Voorheesville included both small and large enterprises. Individuals owned grocery stores, taverns and restaurants, ice cream parlors, automobile garages, lumber and coal yards, ice houses from ice collected from Vly Creek and local mill ponds, while larger corporations included industries such as cigar making, canning (apples and tomatoes), cigar making, a large iron foundry, a cider and vinegar mill, feed and grain mills, and shirt manufacture.

The adjacent railroad tracks and yard and improvement of driving roads in the towns of Guilderland and New Scotland provided the opportunity for the village to grow and prosper both as a residential suburb of Albany and as shipping point for the products manufactured in the village. This collection includes a miscellany of records re: to various businesses that have been located in Voorheesville.

F. 1: Account book of Amy C. Hallenbeck with Miller & Bingham, Troy, NY, ca, 1889-1896. Hallenbeck's accounts include groceries, possibly bought in Voorheesville, but the accounts also include notes about fabric (cambric), pearl buttons and thread that may have been received from Miller & Bingham, a company in Troy, NY that manufactured collars and cuffs. Hallenbeck may have made shirts at home for Miller & Bingham.

F.2: Bill of F[rank] Bloomingdale, Dealer in Hay, Straw and Grain, n.d. (statement of funds received and spent on some public event, perhaps at the I.O.O.F.?)

F. 6: Seven Barks Almanac, 1900, almanac given by J.B. Wands & Son, Dealers in General Merchandise, Voorheesville, NY. Almanac has monthly calendars and articles and letters chiefly about how Seven Barks medicine and Globe pills cure a very wide variety of ailments of the liver, kidneys, "bad humors of the blood," etc.

Cortland Dairy Ration, manufactured by O.B. Vunck & Co., Voorheesville, NY, a printed card (2 cards), giving ingredients of a dairy ration of grain, etc. for cows.

F. 7: History of the Voorheesville Savings and Loan Association, typed, 11 pp., by John Guffin. Guffin was a statistician for the New York State Department of Social Welfare and was married to Flora W. Guffin. Their daughter, Mildred was a librarian of the Voorheesville Public Library in the Thirties. This typescript is generally a recapitulation of the minutes of the Savings and Loan Association from 1913 to 1956, but the first few pages include useful information about not only the Association, but the history of Voorheesville business generally. The Association began in 1913 and was the brainchild of Frederick V. Griesman, the owner of the Albany Malleable Iron Works in the village. A board of directors of prominent village men was organized and loans began to be made in 1913. Griesman wanted his workers to save and have a place where they could procure loans to purchase homes and others could start businesses. The Association was involved in the financing of the Grove Hotel and in 1936 foreclosed on the loan and sold the hotel to a new owner. Note is made of Griesman's resignation from the board in 1922 because of ill health and of his sale of the foundry to a New Jersey foundry company. Peter Bockhaus, a shoemaker, became a member of the Association board and he was the owner of the building on 32 Main St. that was rented to the village library from 1928-1950. Bockhaus was born in Germany about 1868 as was his spouse Mary.

F. 8: Bill from W.S. Swift, lumber dealer, to Peter Borkhuff? (Bockhaus?), 1/22/1894? (1891?) for sawed butt shingles. Also, bill from W.S. Swift to G. C. Lanhart (?), 10/6/1892 for various amounts and types of lumber.

Box 11-12: Village of Voorheesville Records:

This is a collection of both miscellaneous official village records and records of a semi-public nature of the village and its governance.

The Village of Voorheesville was incorporated in 1899 and is located in the Town of New Scotland, Albany County, NY. The village was named after Alonzo B.

Voorhees, a prominent railroad attorney who lived in the village. Earlier names for the settlement that became the village were Union Depot and Farlin. The village was important as a railroad junction as well as having industrial development and a thriving farming community. The railroad junction is gone, but the trains continue going through the village several times a day. There are three schools in the village, Voorheesville Elementary School, Voorheesville Middle School and the C. A. Bouton High School. The Voorheesville Public Library has served the library and information needs of the community and surrounding area since 1915.

The vote of the village residents to incorporate was held on May 8, 1899 and was successful, after a previous attempt to incorporate 7 years earlier had failed to be placed on the ballot. The incorporated village contained 367 acres of land and had a population of 487 people (2010 population was 2,789). The first president of the village board was Frank Bloomingdale, who was to govern the village along with a Treasurer, Collector and two Trustees. A Village Clerk and Street Commissioner were appointed by the board. Over the next few years, the board passed ordinances to keep order in the village and purchased equipment and supplies to do street and other needed work. Fire commissioners and a volunteer fire department were created in 1902. Roads, streets and sidewalks were a regular issue for the village board as was the provision of a water supply for the village, and electric power and telephone lines. There were a few extensions of the village boundaries to incorporate additional adjacent lands over the past century.

Most of the Village of Voorheesville official records are located in the Village Hall. Those records are under the jurisdiction of the Village Clerk and Village Board. The village records described here are a miscellany of older documents related to a number of issues of concern to the village that were collected and preserved by the Village Historian because of their importance for the history of the village. In addition, documents of a semi-public nature or created by semi-public entities are included in this group.

Dayton Joslin were brothers. Jesse was married to Hattie and E. Dayton was married to Lavinia and had children, John F. and Marguerit. E. Dayton, who became Postmaster for Voorheesville in 1893.

F. 8: Grain Mills

Vunck Grist Mill, with workers standing in front along with Oscar Vunck, ca. 1930, HWG, p. 17. Oscar Vunck was the owner of the mill and his son George W. Vunck became the owner of the mill later. The mill was destroyed by fire in 1954.

F. 9: Hotels and Restaurants

Log Cabin Rest, exterior photo with the proprietors, Henry and Ida Berberick, n.d.; also another exterior photo with the proprietors (?) with duplicates. This business was located in what is now the Hannaford Plaza parking lot, Voorheesville. The Berbericks are listed in the 1930 and 1940 censuses and Log Cabin Rest is not listed in either census, where in both Henry is listed as a laborer ("odd jobs" in 1930 and packer at cider mill in 1940); photos have the numbers 36 and 37, so the Log Cabin Rest may have been in operation in 1936-37, but perhaps not many other years.

Box 22 : People: Bell and Ryall families

Bell and Hakes Family:

A group of 75 photographs of the Bell and Hakes family in Voorheesville, all appear to date from about 1910-1920, including portraits, group portraits, children, groups in a car, relaxing together, a train wreck, humorous group portraits, etc.. The family members and others are not individually identified in the photographs. These photos are reproductions from negatives and some of the negatives must have been damaged because several of the copies have damaged images; negatives are not present or with the collection. There is a folder of information about the Bell family of Voorheesville that was found on Ancestry.com and other sources.

The Bell family lived on Maple Avenue in 1920 and 1940. The 1920 Federal Census lists James Henry Bell (66 yrs., father), Ann Catherine Bell (65 yrs., mother), Harriet J. Bell (27 yrs., daughter). The 1900 Federal Census lists the James H. Bell family including: James H. Bell, head, 47 yrs., Anna C. Bell, wife, 46 yrs., George M., son, 19 yrs., Anna R., daughter, 11 yrs., and Hattie J., daughter, 7 yrs. old.

Information found in the Albany County Post obituaries includes the following:

Anna C. Bell , Maple Avenue, Voorheesville, NY, 86 years old, (maiden name, Ann Catherine Martin), born Oct. 13,1854, md. James H. Bell (died April 14, 1940), buried in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, New Salem, NY; 2 daughters, Mrs. Chauncey D. Hakes of Van Wies Pt., NY and Harriet J. Bell of Voorheesville; also 2 sisters, Mrs. Frederick Van Deusen, Mt. Vernon, NY and Phoebe R. Martin of Voorheesville; also 3 grand-daughters, incl. Mrs. Charles F. Freihofer II of Albany, NY. (A.C. Post, 8/22/1941).

Chauncey P. Hakes was the president of the Hakes and LeBourveau Automobile Company and an officer of the Albany Auto Club in 1915. Chauncey and Anna Hakes had two daughters, Frances and Virginia (1920 census). There is a picture of Chauncey Hakes with Henry Ford, John Burroughs and Thomas Edison on the Bethlehem Town Historian's blog.

Mrs. Catherine Bell, widow of the late Lyman Bell, funeral Feb. 15, 1931, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Albright of New Salem, NY, 79 years old; member of the Voorheesville Presbyterian Church; 2 daughters, Miss Jane Bell of Voorheesville and Mrs. William Stalker of Central Bridge, NY, buried in New Scotland Cemetery.

George M. Bell of New Scotland, NY was an officer in the American Buff Wyandotte Club in 1909 (a poultry raising club) and he is mentioned in Poultry Magazine, v. 13, no. 12, 1907 with a photo of Bell Boy, his Wyandotte rooster.
